The Buttonwood Park Zoological Society, a private, non-profit organization, was founded in 1969 to support the BPZ so that the Zoo will be a significant contributor to the conservation of wildlife both locally and globally. ". The Zoological Society is partially funded through the Mass Cultural Council's Cultural Investment Portfolio Gateway Grant. BPZ features over 180 species, most notably Asian elephants, bison, cougars, black bears, eagles, seals, otters, South American primates and numerous waterfowl species.

BPZ is accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums and has been recognized as “one of the finest small zoos in the United States For more information, visit www.bpzoo.org or call (508) 991-6178.

UMass Dartmouth appoints Phil Adams director of the Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship in Fall River

UMass Dartmouth has announced that Phil Adams, who was named interim director of the Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship (CIE) in Fall River last year, has been named to the position permanently under the title of Assistant Vice Chancellor for Innovation, Entrepreneurship and Corporate Engagement.

Adams joins UMass Dartmouth after two stints as CEO of publicly traded companies. He was named Business Leader of the Year in the Entrepreneur category by Worcester Business Journal for his work at Massachusetts-based energy management software firm, World Energy Solutions. Under his leadership, annual revenue grew from $250,000 to $40 million, employment grew from 7 to 130 employees, and the firm had a successful exit to a strategic partner. Adams has also served as an executive and advisor to several other startups.

UMass Dartmouth Chancellor Robert Johnson, who is positioning the university as a catalyst for the development of the Blue

Economy Corridor stretching from Rhode Island to Cape Cod, said Adams and the CIE have a critical role to play in that initiative as well as the broader development of a regional innovation ecosystem.

“As a Tier 1 national research university, UMass Dartmouth is leading efforts to catalyze a blue economy corridor that leverages the area’s coastal location and strengthens the entire regional economy,” Chancellor Johnson said. “Phil’s experience in private sector entrepreneurship uniquely qualifies him to connect entrepreneurs and innovators to unleash job-creating activity at the university and across the region.”

“There is tremendous forward momentum at UMass Dartmouth and across the region, and I am excited to help accelerate that momentum,” Adams said. “UMass Dartmouth and the CIE have a critical role to play in supporting entrepreneurs and the business sector, and I am especially excited about working with UMass Dartmouth’s students and faculty to drive the regional economy forward.”

Having graduated several marine technology companies in recent years and incubating several more right now, the CIE is an important driver for the region’s Blue Economy. Adams and the CIE recently hosted the Marine Renewable Energy Conference in collaboration with the Massachusetts Clean Energy Center. The daylong conference drew more than 100 attendees from across North America.

Under Adams’ leadership, the CIE will strengthen the region’s innovation culture by providing entrepreneurs with shared workspaces, prototyping laboratories, and conferencing spaces. The CIE facility at 151 Martine Street, Fall River is also home to Celldex Therapeutics, one of the region’s leading life science companies.

Among the university’s top priorities for the CIE will be connecting entrepreneurs within the Center and throughout the region with UMass Dartmouth students and faculty. The CIE will also serve as a portal for businesses seeking engagement with the university, working closely with the university research enterprise, colleges, and the SouthCoast Development Partnership.

Easton Man Receives Consecutive Maximum District Court Jail Sentences for Indecent Assault and Domestic Abuse

A Taunton District Court trial jury last week convicted a 46-year-old Easton man of charges related to the indecent assault of a young male relative and the domestic abuse of his wife. The defendant, Randy Stone, was sentenced to consecutive maximum jail sentences, Bristol County District Attorney Thomas M. Quinn III announced.

After a two-day trial, the jury deliberated for about 90 minutes before convicting the defendant of indecent assault and battery on a person under 14, assault and battery of a family or household member and assault and battery. At the recommendation of Assistant District Attorney Matthew Lopes, who prosecuted the case, Judge Michael Brennan sentenced the defendant to serve consecutive two-and-a-half-year jail sentences and placed the defendant on supervised probation for an additional five years. The two-and-a-half year jail sentences are the maximum sentences allowed in the district court. The defendant will serve five years in jail on the charges he was convicted of, but he will not begin serving those sentences until he serves another 10 months in jail for violating the terms of his probation from a 2017 conviction for violating a restraining order.

The indecent assault victim testified at trial that in the spring of 2012, the defendant guided the young boy into a bedroom and put his hand down the victim's shorts to fondle his testicles. The male victim and the defendant's wife also testified that the defendant was abusive towards his wife and that this abuse occurred regularly. On two separate occasions, the young male victim attempted to intervene during the domestic abuse of the defendant's wife/ On both occasions the defendant struck the boy, once in the stomach and once in the face. In April of 2016, Easton Police responded to the residence and arrested the father. Then, in early 2018, while the defendant was incarcerated, the male victim disclosed the previous sexual molestation. The male victim testified that he was afraid of the defendant and that the defendant had told him if he ever told about the domestic abuse, he would kill the boy and the wife.

"I am very pleased the jury held the defendant accountable for abusing his young relative and wife. The evidence showed that the defendant abused and intimidated the victims," District Attorney Quinn said. "He clearly was a menace to his own family and deserves the sentences imposed by the court. I hope the victims can have some sense of security now that the defendant will be incarcerated for the next six years."

Wareham police arrest one and seize crack and powder cocaine, heroin, pills, and cash

At about 7:55 p.m. on Thursday, June 13, Wareham Police Officers Joseph Cardoza, Nate Aronson, and Michael Phinney responded to Brandy Hill Apartments, unit 9L, for a reported disturbance. While investigating, Officer Aronson spotted a large amount of white powdery substance and a digital scale on the kitchen table.

A male in the apartment was detained and officers further located suspected crack cocaine, powder cocaine, suspected heroin, several pills, and over $2,300 cash. Placed under arrest was Nicholas C. Marchi, 32, of Plymouth.

He is charged with possession with intent to distribute a Class "A" drug and two counts of possession with intent to distribute a Class "B" drug. A detective and reserve officer Eric Kanavos assisted at the scene. Officer Phinney was treated and released from Tobey Hospital for a minor injury incurred while searching the suspect.

New Bedford restaurant and police seek help in identifying a “chew and screw" couple

"So, these 2 lovely people decided they wanted a free dinner today. They had soup, chicken and shrimp on a skewer and a T-Bone steak! They chose not to pay for the meals or to tip their waitress!

The police have been called, a report has been made, and the video has been given. The owner and us employees of the Royal Grille work hard to earn a living. Any help in identifying these lovely people would be very appreciated!"-Wendy Barnes.

New Bedford Resilient Community Day: music, food trucks, basketball, animals, arts & crafts and more

Come learn about New Bedford's plan for climate action and resilience while enjoying activities, food trucks, music, games and more.

New Bedford launched NB Resilient, a plan to strengthen the city by preparing for the impacts of climate change. New Bedford's greatest asset is its people, and NB Resilient will have the greatest impact if everyone is involved.

The City is hosting NB Resilient Community Day, an event to learn about the plan, celebrate sustainability, and have a blast doing it.

Activities will include:

- Sustainable art and crafts
- Animals from Buttonwood Park Zoo
- Basketball with the New Bedford Police Department
- A raffle with exciting prizes
- Music
- Food trucks

The event will be held in Magnett Park, 370 Middle Street and will be a great activity for the whole family! The event is free to the public. Registration is appreciated, but not required.

Environmental Stewardship, at michele.paul@newbedford-ma.gov with any questions.

Faces Of New Bedford #210: Bethany Fernandes

Meet Bethany Fernandes, 21-year old videographer and co-owner of The Well. Bethany first became interested in film during her freshman year of high school, but only because she enjoyed acting. By the beginning of her sophomore year, she was ready to give up on the class but her new teacher gave the class a new perspective to film making and it made her fall in love.

By the end of that school year, Bethany had worked with a team of students to win a New England Student Emmy with their music video. Encouraged and inspired by this, she set off to film her own video her junior year, which won her another New England Student Emmy while she was still in high school, but recently won a National Student Emmy.

During her senior year, she put together her legacy project, which was a commercial for the school. The commercial went on to win two New England Student Emmy's, for Bethany's writing and videography. With so much already accomplished, she knew it only made sense that she go to school for film.

In the fall of 2016, Bethany began studying film at Quinnipiac

College in Connecticut. She quickly realized that there wasn't much more she would learn in film school to do the work she wanted to after and switched her major to marketing. She knew with the right marketing knowledge and the vast amount of educational material online, she'd be able to open her own branding and marketing business. This led her to open The Well with high school classmate, Erick Sa, focusing wedding and commercial videography.
