

Four Individuals Arrested for Armed Robbery at Residence Inn in Dartmouth

On Wednesday, March 20, 2019 at approximately 10:44 p.m., members of the Dartmouth Police Department responded to a report of an armed robbery of the Residence Inn, located at #181 Faunce Corner Road.

According to information gathered from the female victim, four individuals, two males and two females, entered her room. Once inside, the victim stated that the females physically assaulted her, while the males ransacked the room.

The female victim stated that the suspects made away with $7,800 in cash and a Rolex watch valued at $14,500.

As the victim was familiar with one of the female suspects, officers were able to positively identify her, as well as the other suspects. With additional information that officers later received, a regional broadcast was sent out with information associated with the vehicle that the suspects were operating (a Hyundai Elantra).

At approximately 1:43 a.m. officers from the Westport Police Department stopped the vehicle on State Road, identified its occupants, and contacted Dartmouth Police.

As a result of the incident, Dartmouth Police arrested Jadelynn GIBBONS, 24, of Nash Road, New Bedford; Shantel MEDEIROS, 22, of Salisbury Street, New Bedford; Hakeem LOPES, 25, of Adams Street, New Bedford; and Manny ANDREWS, 25, of Bannister Street, New Bedford.

All four (4) suspects were charged with armed robbery, assault and battery, larceny over $1,200, and conspiracy to commit a crime.

Massachusetts State Troopers respond to 2 Separate Tractor-Trailer Crashes; More

Than a Thousand Packages Spilled on Highway

Late Wednesday night Troopers responded to two separate crashes involving tractor-trailers on Route 495 southbound in Chelmsford. The separate crashes occurred around 10:30 and remain under investigation.

One crash involved a tractor-trailer and a personal vehicle. The second crash involved two tractor-trailers, one of which, a UPS truck dropped its large cargo of parcels onto the roadway. At this time there are estimated to be well over a thousand parcels on the roadway. The spilled parcels will be reloaded onto another UPS truck that responded to the scene from the company's nearby facility.

Three people were transported to Lowell General Hospital with non-life threatening injuries. One of the injured was an occupant of the personal car, while the other two are tractor-trailer drivers.

Two of the three lanes are closed for the clean up operation and crash investigation. Because of the large number of parcels on the road, the two lanes are expected to be closed for several hours.

The investigation into the causes of the separate crashes is being conducted by Troop A of the Massachusetts State Police with assistance from the State Police Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Section.

New Bedford students graduate from True Course program

Getting higher grades. Handling anger better. Behaving more appropriately and cutting down on discipline incidents.

These are the kinds of goals set and, more importantly, accomplished by the five New Bedford students who graduated from the Bristol County Sheriff's Office True Course program last week.

Parents, guardians, case workers and staff applauded as the five students – Devin, Nellyanne, Karina, Franchesca and Luis – received their certificates for completing the program over the last 11 months at a ceremony held at the Sheriff's Office.

Bristol County Sheriff Thomas M. Hodgson urged the graduates to go back to their neighborhoods, communities and schools and pass along the lessons learned to others.

"Help each other out," he said to the graduates. "Become young leaders, go back to your communities and make them stronger."

Created last year to support at-risk youth before they get into trouble, the True Course program uses the outdoors as a vehicle for change to boost life skills, teamwork and self-confidence in kids who are at risk to head down the wrong path. Youth are referred to the True Course program from the United Way's Family Resource Development Center, which typically receives referrals from school resource officers, guidance counselors or family members.

"This is all about community," Sheriff Hodgson continued. "Parents, guardians, the United Way, everyone coming together to get kids on the right trajectory."

Youth in the program undertake a variety of outdoor activities and adventures, such as canoeing, ziplining, fishing, camping and others. Each activity has a life skill and team work component built into it. For example, youth went canoeing, capsized their canoes and had to work as a team and communicate effectively to get back in. Another example is using map and compass to navigate in the outdoors, with True Course staff sharing with the youth that they need to have their own life map and moral compasses to being a happy, healthy adult and member of the community.

The best part of the program? It's working. A staff member from the United Way FRDC said at the graduation ceremony that Nellyanne, one of her students, is now a straight-A scholar. Parents attending said their children are behaving better than they were.

The next step for two of the graduates is a 12-week leadership course, upon which after completion, they will serve as peer leaders to future True Course youth.

"The best way to make a real impact on public safety is to reach children before they ever walk through the front door of a police station or jail," Sheriff Hodgson said. "Programs like this and others are critically important to building strong communities, neighborhoods and schools."

True Course was named after the maritime term for a vessel's first charted course before weather and other factors push it off course. It is staffed by Youth Outreach Deputies Mike Valler, Bruno Ventura, Mariah Carvalho and Tyler Oliveira. Parents or others interested in the program should contact the United Way's FRDC in New Bedford at 508-994-4521. The program is slated to expand to Fall River later this year.

Alma del Mar Board of Trustees approves agreement with City of New Bedford

Alma del Mar's Board of Trustees voted Monday evening to approve a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with the City of New Bedford to open a new, neighborhood-enrolled charter public school that will grow over four years to serve 450 children in grades K-8.

In January, Alma received approval from the state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education to open a new charter public school in New Bedford. Officials from Alma, the City of New Bedford and the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education have negotiated this unique MOU to eventually operate the new school at the former Kempton Elementary School.

"This agreement represents an incredible opportunity for New Bedford families and students. We are excited to forge ahead in collaboration with Superintendent Thomas Anderson to support great schools for all children in our city," said Alma Board Chair Jan Baptist.

The deal is still pending various city and state approvals. If all approvals are received, Alma plans to open at the former

Our Lady of the Immaculate Conception school building this August and will initially serve 200 students in grades K, 1, 2, and 6. This new school will grow over four years to serve 450 children in grades K-8 who are enrolled from the new zone drawn by NBPS around the former Horatio A. Kempton School.

The school will serve as Alma's temporary home while the now-closed Kempton School undergoes renovations to ensure it is a safe and welcoming space for students. If city approvals are granted, the City of New Bedford would convey the Kempton to Alma del Mar later this spring.

"I am thrilled by this unique collaboration between the City in which I spent my professional career and a school that I believe in wholeheartedly," said Martha Kay, a member of Alma's Board of Trustees. "It is exciting to see these two working together for the good of our community and, just as importantly, the benefit of our children."

Alma trustees are volunteers who serve three-year terms. As members of the Alma del Mar Board of Trustees, each trustee advocates on behalf of the 450 New Bedford children that we have committed to serve and put on a college trajectory.

Alma's Board of Trustee members are: Jan Baptist (Chair), Martha Kay, Gail Fortes, Maria Rosario, Chris Arnold, Lucile Hicks, Christopher Bator, Bronwen Cunningham, David Eckert and John Polk.
