

New Bedford Cumberland Farms closes after employee tests positive for COVID-19

In April, Cumberland Farms shut down two Westport stores after a delivery driver tested positive for COVID-19 and now a third store has closed. The Cumberland Farms store at 757 Ashley Blvd. in New Bedford closed its doors after one of their employees tested positive for the coronavirus.

The temporary closing on Tuesday evening was to allow a crew to disinfect, clean and sanitize the entire store and reopen at some point next week.

In a statement by the company, they stated "We are making every effort to provide the affected Team Member and our broader team with the necessary resources and support. We are taking all appropriate steps following guidance from local health officials.

We are grateful to all our customers for your patience and understanding during this time. All Team Members that work at these stores have been contacted and advised to follow CDC-recommended guidelines."

Massachusetts State Police respond to motorcycle crash in Medford that claims life of one, leaves another injured

Last night at about 9:20 p.m., Troopers from State Police-Medford responded to a motorcycle crash on Fellsway North in Medford that resulted in the death of the operator and seriously injured the passenger.

Preliminary investigation indicates a 2008 Kawasaki motorcycle being operated by, ENZO VNICIUS, 29, of Malden, popped the front tire off the roadway. VNICIUS then lost control of the motorcycle and struck the right rear corner of a parked van, ejecting both he and his passenger.

VNICIUS struck a tree and was determined deceased on scene. His passenger, a 31-year-old female from Somerville, was thrown onto the sidewalk and was transported to Massachusetts General Hospital with serious injuries.

The crash remains under investigation by Troop A of the Massachusetts State Police along with the Collision Analysis Reconstruction Section (CARS), and Crime Scene Services Section (CSSS). Troopers were assisted on scene by the Massachusetts Office of the Chief Medical Examiner and the Massachusetts Department of Transportation.

#StigmaFreeSouthCoast: Juliet Xifaras

Juliet Xifaras, RN, IBCLC, and wellness enthusiast has over ten years of experience in the field of maternity nursing, specializing in breastfeeding and childbirth education. In 2018 she followed her passion and launched “Wholehearted Wellness” to support mind and body wellness using holistic solutions. She continues to support mothers with lactation and the challenges that may arise for women navigating the transition to motherhood. Juliet is a wife and twin mama. She sat down with us to discuss strategies and struggles during postpartum/perinatal as well as her own mental health struggles.

Juliet started out her career in social work primarily working with pregnant teenagers and this inspired her to go into nursing. Her nursing career started as a labor and delivery nurse in San Diego supporting laboring and birthing moms. Eventually, Juliet became a lactation consultant and worked with moms during the perinatal period. “The postpartum period is such a major transition for these women,” says Juliet, “It is certainly one of the biggest transitions for women.” Juliet mentions that the perinatal stage is defined as during pregnancy and through the postpartum period – into the first year. Using her experience as a lactation consultant, Juliet partnered with a local friend and business owner, Courtney Steele, to offer a 4-week series where new moms could come together to support each other, learn a little more about the lactation process from Juliet but also receive a little pampering. “Self-Care is such a vital part of the postpartum stage and we wanted to provide that as well as a space to gather and collaborate and just be surrounded by other women going through the same process.”

Juliet herself has a pretty significant history with mental health issues. “I struggled with anxiety and depression starting in my late teens,” said Juliet, “ I had these indirect pressures from my upbringing and family and mixed with my desire for perfection, it caused me to have some significant triggers.” These mental health issues were a concern for some family members when Juliet and her husband, Tom, were considering pregnancy. “I had been building my toolbox, as I call it, of healthy coping mechanisms for when I was feeling triggered. I built this up over time and through experience.” Juliet knew that because of her battles with anxiety and depression it would put her at risk for postpartum depression. After much consideration and deliberation, Juliet and her husband were blessed with twin boys. “I was elated! It was like falling in love all over again.” “After about the first 4 months with my boys, that’s when things started to go badly. I started comparing myself to other moms in these groups I was following and it was my inner need for perfection that I felt like I was failing – mix these feelings with a lack of sleep and I hit a wall and the anxiety and depression hit.” Juliet credits her time spent at the Day Hospital, which is a section of Women and Infants in Providence, where new moms suffering with depression and anxiety, can bring their babies and spend the day. “It was great to spend time with my boys and other moms and their children and support each other,” said Juliet.

Throughout her years of dealing with anxiety and depression, Juliet has been able to not only help herself, but help others in the process. “I know that I need to ask for help when I am feeling triggered. It is part of that toolbox that I have developed over time on what I can draw on and fall back on when I need it.” Juliet shared the acronym M (medications) E

(exercise) D (diet – what we eat) S (sleep) as a great starting point to fall back on when feeling overwhelmed/guide to follow to healthy coping skills. “Knowing yourself and knowing your triggers while also being able to ask for help from your support system is the best advice I can give new moms when starting out.”

Stigma free Southcoast is a collaborative initiative highlighting the everyday people of the Southcoast who are working to remove the stigmas associated with mental health, mental illnesses, depression, suicide, postpartum and addiction, to name a few. Our goal and mission is to share our stories and personal battles with the end result of moving closer to removing the stigma. We are your everyday people- the teachers, the businessmen and women, the parent at the sporting event, your neighbor. These are everyday struggles that know no color, race, sex, socioeconomic status- the stigmas are real and they are daunting. Let's work together to help make a #stigmaFreeSouthcoast.

New Bedford convicted drug dealer charged with fentanyl trafficking

On May 13, New Bedford Police Narcotics Detectives seized more than 30 grams of fentanyl during a search of 314 Coffin Ave., Apt. 5. Along with fentanyl, detectives reportedly discovered more than $1,300 and drug trafficking paraphernalia.

Brian Wayne Still, 40, 314 Coffin Ave., Apt. 5, was charged with trafficking in fentanyl. He has a prior conviction for distribution of class B (cocaine). Detective Nathan Pimental led the investigation.

Fentanyl is responsible for 93% of all overdose deaths in Massachusetts.

If you have any information on criminal activity in your community, the New Bedford Police Dept. wants to hear from you. You can leave an anonymous tip on our voicemail at (508) 991-6300 Ext. 1.

Baker to distribute $502 million from the federal Coronavirus Relief Fund to local cities and towns

The Baker-Polito Administration Thursday announced that it is preparing to distribute up to $502 million from the federal Coronavirus Relief Fund to local cities and towns for eligible costs related to the COVID-19 response effort. The Administration is also providing guidance to local municipalities on this formal distribution process and establishing protocols to maximize the use of federal resources and promote compliance with federal restrictions.

This distribution, plus funds allocated directly to Boston and Plymouth County, represents approximately 25% of the state's allocation from the Coronavirus Relief Fund, and in most cases, is expected to be sufficient to address incurred or expected eligible COVID-related expenses. This approach is intended to distribute money to municipalities quickly and efficiently, and maintain necessary flexibility to allocate additional funds if unanticipated needs arise, or if federal rules change. These resources will also help ease municipal cashflow pressures.

The Administration's distribution process will allow municipalities to apply for estimated Fiscal Year 2020 (FY20) needs. These funds will help address any existing deficits in FY20, thereby avoiding the need to use reserves to fund a deficit or carry one into Fiscal Year 2021 (FY21). Municipalities will then have the opportunity to request funding for FY21 eligible COVID-19 costs at a later date.

These funds must be utilized by municipalities consistent with parameters established by the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (the "CARES" Act) and guidance from the US Treasury Department.

Massachusetts reaches 424,361 COVID-19 tests

Massachusetts Coronavirus Update

On May 14, the Massachusetts Public Health Department reported that the state added 1,685 more positive cases of COVID-19 bringing to total to 82,182. This is an increase from Wednesday's 1,165 reported cases.

167 new COVID-19 related deaths were reported on Thursday bringing the total deaths in Massachusetts to 5,482. As of 4 pm today, 424,361 people in Massachusetts have been tested for COVID-19 – 14,329 new tests since yesterday.

As of May 12, 48,372 individuals in Massachusetts were subject to quarantine with 27,812 no longer in quarantine. 20,560 individuals are undergoing monitoring/under quarantine.

Several Republican legislators on Tuesday urged Gov. Charlie Baker to not delay the reopening of the economy any longer, expressing frustration that other states around Massachusetts are allowing businesses to resume activities while owners and employees in their districts remain in limbo. New Bedford will offer free masks to any resident who wants one Mayor Jon Mitchell announced that the City of New Bedford has launched MaskNB, an initiative in partnership with the Southeastern Massachusetts chapter of the American Red Cross and Joseph Abboud Manufacturing Corporation, to continue to promote the widespread use of masks to prevent the spread of COVID-19 by offering a mask to any City resident who wants one at no cost, at a series of drive-through distribution events in late May and June.

Mayor Mitchell explained the reason for making the masks available: “The scientific basis for widespread mask use is growing stronger, but in order for that knowledge to make a difference, we need to take individual and collective action. At an individual level, that means remembering to always wear a mask whenever you cannot practice social distancing.

Mitchell added, “Collectively, it means finding ways to help each other adjust to the ‘new normal’ of daily mask-wearing. By supplying enough masks for all our residents, we are not only taking an important step in that direction, but we are doing something unique that few cities have been able to undertake. In this case, the commitment of American Red Cross volunteers, the creativity and determination of Joseph Abboud workers, and key city government departments, all came together to make the impossible, possible. They all deserve our thanks and admiration.”

“We’re proud to partner with the City of New Bedford and Joseph Abboud Manufacturing Corporation to distribute masks to local citizens. Public safety is an important mission of the Red Cross, and together we can help stop the spread of the COVID virus and protect our loved ones and neighbors,” said Barbara Cotton, executive director of the Southeastern Massachusetts chapter of the American Red Cross.

“We are proud to continue to support New Bedford’s efforts to fight COVID-19,” said Joe Bahena, CEO of Joseph Abboud Manufacturing Corporation. The designer menswear manufacturer, based in the City’s North End, retooled its facility to produce masks early in the COVID-19 response effort, and has continued to refine its operations to meet the City’s needs.

Under the MaskNB distribution plan, interested residents in each of the City’s six Wards will have an opportunity to obtain free cloth face masks at New Bedford High School, 230 Hathaway Boulevard, on the following assigned dates and times:

Ward 1 Saturday, May 30 – 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Ward 2 Sunday, May 31 – 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Ward 3 Saturday, June 6 – 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Ward 4 Sunday, June 7 – 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Ward 5 Saturday, June 13 – 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Ward 6 Sunday, June 14 – 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

The dates are listed at www.masknb.com. Additional dates may be announced based on available supplies.

Residents should arrive at the main vehicle entrance of New Bedford High School, located at 230 Hathaway Boulevard, and remain in their vehicles as Red Cross volunteers hand out masks based on their requests. Residents are asked to limit their mask requests to those in their household and/or any elderly or vulnerable neighbors (who have been advised against leaving their homes).

In late April the City announced the first phase of its mask distribution effort, with a goal of delivering roughly 50,000 Abboud-made masks to first responders, essential workers, and vulnerable populations, including residents and staff of nursing homes, long-term care facilities, senior living facilities, shelters, and New Bedford Housing Authority facilities. Masks are also being provided to staff and patients of the Greater New Bedford Community Health Center, the staff and clients of the Meals on Wheels program, and elderly clients of the Immigrants Assistance Center. To date, the City has distributed more than 20,000 masks.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommend the wearing of cloth face coverings in public where social distancing is difficult to maintain; cloth face coverings are not a substitute for medical-grade masks, but provide more protection against the spread of viruses than not covering one's face. More information about the use and effectiveness of cloth face coverings to prevent the spread of COVID-19 is available at <https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/prevent-getting-sick/diy-cloth-face-coverings.html>.

Mayor Mitchell declared a state of emergency in New Bedford on March 13 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The City has since announced a range of measures to safeguard public health, including stringent requirements on nursing homes and senior living facilities, workplace safety protections, and regulations on food vendors and restaurants to protect their staff and customers.
