

Faces Of New Bedford #137: Scott Botelho

Meet Scott Botelho, 50-year-old Real Estate Broker Associate and Realtor.

After growing up in the area, Scott began working at Massachusetts Department of Correction in Bridgewater. Knowing that he didn't want to spend the rest of his life as a corrections officer, he started researching the real estate market. His father-in-law Jesse Amorin took him under his wing and taught him the business.

As with any major life decision, Scott carefully mapped out his course as a real estate agent and once his business was established, he left corrections in 2007. He owes all of his success in the industry to his ability to foster and maintain relationships, treating his clients as if they were his family, not letting them sell a house for less than what it's worth or buy a house he didn't feel would put them in a good position.

His passion for the city has driven almost 80 percent of all of his business here, where he is able to help the people of our city attain the dream of owning their own house. In 2016 he became the #1 RE/MAX agent in Massachusetts and as a result he recently added 2 full time agents to better serve the community.
