

A hero returns safely to the Massachusetts State Police

"A Hero Returns Safely to The State Police.

Among the unrest in Afghanistan, the Massachusetts State Police are happy to announce the safe return of one of our own after a difficult deployment to that country.

United States Army Major Brendan Carnes, a Trooper assigned to investigate homicides in Essex County, returned this afternoon from an 8 month deployment in Afghanistan where he admirably performed his duty to our country.

He was met at the airport by his grateful parents Peter and Karen who breathed a collective sigh of relief at the return of their son. Peter Carnes is the former Chief of Police in Wenham and retired as the Chief of Police in Yarmouth."- Massachusetts State Police.

Massachusetts State Police photo.