

The Homework Helper's program wins national award!

The Alliance for Community Media has selected New Bedford Cable Network (NBCN) to receive a national award for the daily educational program, "Homework Helpers." The live show is produced and filmed by NBCN staff and is hosted by New Bedford Public Schools teachers who provide real-time guidance to students.

Each year, the Hometown Media Awards honors and promotes community media, and local cable programs that are distributed on Public, Educational and Governmental (PEG) access cable television channels. Awards are presented to creative programs that address community needs, develop diverse community involvement, challenge conventional commercial television formats and move viewers to experience television in a different way.

This year, more than 800 entries were submitted in 30 categories. New Bedford's Homework Helpers program won the top prize in the Live Format category.

Mayor Jon Mitchell said of the recognition, "Homework Helpers is a terrific show and an important tool in connecting what goes on in our schools with what goes on at home." He added, "I could not be more proud of NBCN. The NBCN staff is committed to producing quality public television for New Bedford residents and their efforts have not gone unnoticed. Channels 17, 18, and 95 link residents to important activities in government and education and serve as an outlet for community engagement and communication."
