

Massachusetts Environmental Police free coyote stuck in porch railing

On Thursday, March 7, 2019, the Massachusetts Environmental Police responded to a report of a coyote stuck in a porch railing in the Town of Weston. Officers did not observe any injuries to the coyote and were successfully able free the animal.

Once freed, the coyote ran off without issue.

For information about coyotes in Massachusetts and tips for residents, please visit: <http://bit.ly/2VK5MqT>