

Massachusetts State Police Trooper play “Taps” for Maine police officers killed in the line of duty

“Massachusetts State Police Sgt. Michael Crowley had the honor of playing Taps yesterday for the annual service at the state of Maine’s monument to law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty.

The memorial is located in Augusta. In addition to his regular duties as a patrol supervisor, Sgt. Crowley is the Massachusetts State Police’s ceremonial bugler. He is seen in these photos with the Maine State Police Honor Guard, who invited him to play at the service.” -Massachusetts State Police.

Massachusetts State Police photo.