

National Weather Service forecasts below freezing temps for Thanksgiving

An outbreak of arctic air is forecast to drop temperatures well below freezing across the Northeast U.S. For Southern New England, it could be the coldest air for the holiday observed since records began in 1872.