

NB Counts Announces Multiple Census Pop Up Events This Weekend

As the deadline to complete the U.S. Census rapidly approaches, the NB Counts Committee is working hard to identify areas in the city that remain under-counted. As we reported yesterday several neighborhoods across different sections of greater New Bedford are still in the “red” This means that they are behind the response rate from the 2010 Census. The NB Counts team is doing a big push over the next few days targeting those areas. If you have not completed your census you can do so here: <https://my2020census.gov/>
