A New Bedford police officer was arrested today and charged in federal court in Boston with child pornography offenses.

Paul Hodson, 42, of Acushnet, was charged with one count of distribution of child pornography and one count of possession of child pornography. He will appear in federal court in Boston later today.

Following an investigation into the use of peer-to-peer file-sharing networks for the trade of child pornography, a federal search warrant was executed at Hodson's Acushnet home. Hodson was interviewed on-scene and admitted to using peer-to-peer file-sharing software to trade child pornography. In the course of a preliminary on-scene forensic preview of Hodson's computer, hundreds of child pornography files were recovered, including at least one file that was distributed to undercover law enforcement in the course of the investigation that led to the search warrant.

The charge of distribution of child pornography provides for a mandatory minimum sentence of five years and up to 20 years in prison, a minimum of five years and up to a lifetime of supervised release, and a fine of up to $250,000. The charge of possession of child pornography provides for a sentence of no greater than 20 years in prison, a minimum of five years and up to a lifetime of supervised release, and a fine of up to $250,000. Sentences are imposed by a federal district court judge based upon the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines and other statutory factors.
