It's that time of year where spring transitions to summer and local farmers offer their harvest to the public. South Coast Massachusetts residents are fortunate to have 12 farmers markets in New Bedford, Fairhaven, Dartmouth, Westport, Acushnet, Rochester, Mattapoisett and Fall River. Supporting local farmers not only supports the local economy, but it's also the healthier way to bring produce to your table. I detailed the benefits of buying local produce in my Silverbrook Farm CSA article.

Below is a list of the local farmers markets. This data was pulled from the Federation of Massachusetts Farmers Markets website where you can find a farmers market anywhere in Massachusetts. If you have details on any of these farmers markets please post a comment and I'll add it to the article. Buy fresh, buy local!
