

Wareham man arrested for illegally possessing seven firearms, ammunition, and large capacity-feeding device

On Friday, March 5, at about 9:30 p.m., Wareham Police detectives and patrol officers executed a search warrant at 5 Quaker Road in Wareham. Detectives were conducting an investigation into illegal firearms being stored in the residence.

During the course of the search, detectives seized seven firearms, ammunition, and a large capacity-feeding device for ammunition. In addition, one resident was placed under arrest.

34-year-old David Daggett, of Quaker Road, East Wareham, is charged with two counts of carrying a firearm without a license, four counts of possession of a firearm without an FID card, possession of a large-capacity firearm, possession of a large capacity feeding device, and illegal possession of ammunition.

The following uniformed officers assisted detectives with the warrant service: Lieutenant Peter Flannery, Sergeant Steve Soqui, and Officer James White.

Chief John Walcek praised the detectives saying, "In one day our detectives seized Fentanyl from an earlier raid, then went right back to work executing a search warrant for weapons." He added, "The goal is to make Wareham as safe as possible for everyone."
